

484

---

1st schism between Eastern & Western Churches

484

Patriarch Acacius of Constantinople was excommunicated.

Schism lasted for 35 years.

494-507

Eric was succeeded by his son Alaric II who died in the battle of VOUVILLÉ in 507

Before end of 484 Eunice died in Arles, of a natural death, as later reports took pains to emphasize since no other ruler of Toulouse was so fortunate.

Jan. 1, 484

He was probably 33 yrs old

Theodosius was back in Constantinople to begin his regular consulship. From that time, he possessed the caligeratus. As Consul, the Gothic King received the usual honors.

In the year of Theodosius' consulship, it was thought the time was right to take energetic measures against the Isaurian rebels in Asia Minor. As the head of his tribal warriors and workers demand more Trade unions in Peru. But the new middle, Trade can uphold by PERUAN Archi and Asper and lessening Trade unions grows

Lekitach, son of Theodoric Strabo, was also in Constantinople by the consul of that year, Flavius Theodericus, with the emperor's knowledge

Dec. 28, 484

On Dec 28, 484, in Toulouse, Alaric II took his father's place. The new king was young, probably the same age as his Frankish antagonist Clavis.

484

The Migration of the Ostrogoths within the Balkans.

Theodoric the Great became consul.

484-507

The new Visigoths: Regnum Tolosanum

ALARIC II

484-496

1912 Dates. J-BK

Vendals

Gentamund was king of the Vandals

484-519AD

The Pope's excommunication of Patriarch Acacius of Constantinople leads to first schism between the Western and the Eastern churches.